NO PLACE FOR WOMEN

By JOSEPH MILLARD

The Adventures of Patsy Graves, WAC

THE FREIGHTER plowed steadily north ward through the calm Pacific twilight. At bow and stern alert gun crews stood by their lone watchers. In the rigging, sharp-eyed watchmen scanned the sea and sky for a sign of submarine or enemy plane.

Actually there was little danger aboard the Danny Dee American sea and air power had so blockaded that section of the Pacific Ocean that few Japs dared show their treacherous faces anywhere near it. Leaning on the rail of the bridge, Captain Ezra Bangs commander of the Danny Dee chewed [illegible] and studied the sunset. Then he turned his eyes [illegible] figure at the forward [illegible] and frowned.

Ezra Bangs disgustedly [illegible] Or a freighter [illegible]

As if [illegible] WAC Sergeant Patsy Graves turned [illegible] at the [illegible] old mariner. The lanky Bangs [illegible] able old tyrant whose bark was much worse than his bite, [illegible] roughing curses of long standing at Redorphastered Sugene" and his pet name, the wild rascal.

So Patsy disconsolate [illegible] fully. She felt cheerful. After weeks [illegible] Big Jack's theatre, here she was being transferred to Chungking Thousands followed and got even the wonderful [illegible] traveling on the old freighter dampens her spirits.

She turned back [illegible] and suddenly stiffening [illegible] Three ships were [illegible] a passing [illegible] Or [illegible] just [illegible] Wonder [illegible]

At that moment a gunner on the bow rushed [illegible] voice in an urgent shout. "Sub! All hands! Right [illegible] There's a [illegible] of visible morning through the bow plates.

Captain Bangs turned an [illegible] red. [illegible] the deck. All [illegible] the fighting apparatus was hooked up and hose lines and extinguishers were being hauled forward.

The smoke was visible now against the red glow of the setting sun. A bang and a puff over the Danny's bow, [illegible] among visibly as [illegible] serpent up from [illegible]

"Flares are getting warm, sir a gunner reported [illegible] ran for [illegible] got more than a smoke-screen sir."

Men with [illegible] masks were [illegible] and [illegible] a [illegible] door [illegible] bow in an effort [illegible] source of the [illegible] Captain Bangs stood aside. [illegible] Although the hull [illegible] All [illegible] a bit of [illegible] a stopped [illegible] but it [illegible] when the [illegible] it [illegible] as well. The Danny Dee [illegible] by a [illegible] gunners [illegible] to [illegible]

STANDING [illegible] less [illegible] we [illegible] stagger out of the [illegible] and [illegible] of their masks before [illegible] Bangs. [illegible] a [illegible] itself. Probably to the [illegible] hose.

Penny shivered. She knew that section of the boat was loaded tight with explosives. When the men rushed down into the hold, she ran with them, hoping against hope for a chance to help.

They were grouped around a forward bulkhead door when she got there. Smoke was rolling out, black and oily but beneath it Penny could see the crouched figures. In an effort to increase loading, the stevedores had packed the hold so full of ammunition boxes that there was no room for a man and his fire fighting equipment to get through to the fire ahead. The only way would be to painstakingly lift out, one by one, the heavy powder cases until enough room had been created to let the men through. But the only place to put each case as it was removed was up on deck where it meant lugging the heavy cases up the stairs and down again.

Captain Bangs took a long, deep breath, then plunged in to peer through the smoke. And when he turned about there was a look of agony in his eyes. "Give word to abandon ship," he ordered, and his request with a strange emotion. The Danny had been for so many years. He had fought with her through storm and strife. He had brought her proudly through doldrum to the height of homeward seas on a dozen voyages. He had stayed with her some years than he liked to remember.

"Only time to leave," he [illegible] take [illegible] ... will go up [illegible] ... [illegible] the fire would get more air to blaze up on us we'd be defeating our own purpose."

He turned, shoulders sagging, and then came up short. Confronting him was slim, youthful Penny Graves, her eyes flashing. "Wait, Captain Bangs. You've got to give me a chance! I'm not very big and I'm sure I can crawl through that narrow space with a hose."

"No!" Captain Bangs roared, and then his voice softened. "Thanks, but it's too much risk. Remember—and the suddenness of an explosion—"

Then he froze, gaping. For Penny Graves had whipped, smocked up a smoke mask from one man, a hose from another. And before anyone could move to stop her she was into the smoke.

PENNY would never tell anyone she was not afraid. At the moment her knees shook and cold perspiration dewed her face. But she drove herself on, squeezing painfully through the narrow passageway, loud with the [illegible] cases of explosives. Smoke blinded her and the hose dragged terribly at her arms but she kept nothing on.

At last there was a space wide enough for her to drop to hands and knees and after that her progress was a trifle easier. But the trip seemed endless and [illegible] moment she [illegible] was sure of the explosion that would be the end of [illegible] all.

Suddenly straight ahead, [illegible] smoke, and her heart leaped wildly. The fire had apparently started in some old rags left by a workman and as far the lack of air in that cramped space had kept it from leaping up and spreading. But it was spreading, nevertheless.

Grimly, Penny dragged up her hose, braced herself and turned the nozzle valve. The hose stiffened and bucked in her hands but she clung desperately, playing the roaring stream onto the red glow until it vanished and the black smoke turned to steaming steam.

At last with every vestige of fire gone and the corridor already cleaning of smoke, Penny turned off [illegible] and dragged herself back. When at last she saw the lights beyond the open bulkhead door, the eager faces running the thought was the most welcome sight on earth.

Eager hands drew her out and strong arms helped her stand. Someone shoved a mug of steaming coffee into her hands. Another threw a [illegible] around [illegible] drenched figure. She sipped the coffee smiling [illegible].

"You were wonderful, Penny," the men cried, crowding around her. "You saved the ship, saved the cargo, back, you saved us."

"Don't forget—" Penny told them, smiling [illegible] through the smoky mask of her face, "I also saved myself!"

At the side Captain Ezra Bangs [illegible] "No [illegible] ran in [illegible] a [illegible], either."

But there was some of the [illegible] voice and he [illegible] straighten [illegible] at what was in his heart.
